

Radiotherapy Channel at UCLH

In4Health have created and installed a customised patient information channel in the Radiotherapy department of the University College Hospital London. The trial channel has been designed to keep the patients in the waiting area informed of what's happening within the department in regards to appointments and also informs patients of other services that are available to them from UCLH. The content varies from departmental updates to lighter items such as general quiz questions, meet the staff spots and entertainment and sports news provided by Reuters. The content can be edited in real time by the department to keep patients informed and updated.
